Great for Philip Marlowe fans who have older cassette decksBy L. WilliamsI ordered this by mistake thinking it was a CD, completely missing that these are a series of cassette tapes. If you have an older car and an in-dash cassette player, these will be great to listen to on a trip or a long drive to work. If you want the CDs, be sure to read more carefully than I did. I had to send these back because I just don't have a cassette player anymore.I find it amazing how technology has progressed in my lifetime. When I was a kid, vinyl LPs and 45's were the only way you could listen to recorder music (besides the radio). Then audio cassettes came along and the Sony Walkman, and I re-purchased and replaced a lot of my records with tapes. It was wonderful to listen to whole albums in my car and in my Walkman wherever I was. Then came CDs and I re-purchased much of my collection again. With the advent of the iPod and iTunes I fortunately haven't had to re-purchase the stuff I have on CD because I can rip it into iTunes with no difficulty--and the iTunes Store makes it easy to buy albums and individual songs whenever I want. My iPod and iPhone let me carry thousands of songs with me wherever I go, and play them crystal clear over dockable sound systems.It's sad to see cassettes die, but in comparison with digital technology, they're like old buggy whips.

Tough crimes in a tough world call for a tough man to solve them! That man is Philip Marlowe, Raymond Chandler's king of the hard boiled detectives -- and you'll hear him in twenty radio-noir adventures produced by Norman Macdonnell and starring Gerald Mohr! Jeff Corey co-stars as Detective Lieutenant Ybarra, and Larry Dobkin is heard as Detective Lieutenant Matthews, in these action-packed tales of bullets, broads, and the good old fashioned double-cross. Includes a Program Guide by Karl Schadow. Episodes Include: Red Wind 09-28-46; The Persian Slippers 10-03-48; The Old Acquaintance 12-26-48; The Orange Dog 01-22-49; The Long Rope 02-05-49; The Dancing Hands 03-19-49; The Name to Remember 04-09-49; The Heat Wave 04-16-49; The Cloak of Kamehameha 04-23-49; The Lady in Mink 04-30-49; The Promise to Pay 05-14-49; Night Tide 05-21-49; The Unfair Lady 06-04-49; The Busy Body 06-18-49; The Headless Peacock 07-16-49; The Mexican Boat Ride 07-30-49; The Strangle Hold 10-05-49; The High-Collared Cape 04-25-50; The Seahorse Jockey 05-02-50; The Fox's Tail 05-23-50
