

(Mobile book) African Broadcast Cultures: Radio in Transition

African Broadcast Cultures: Radio in Transition

Graham Furniss

*audiobook / ebooks / Download PDF / ePub / DOC

 Download

 Read Online

#9714572 in Books 2000-01-01 Original language: English PDF # 1 9.00 x 6.00 x .751, #File Name: 0852558287256 pages | File size: 60.Mb

Graham Furniss : African Broadcast Cultures: Radio in Transition before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised African Broadcast Cultures: Radio in Transition:

Radio has played a pivotal role in situations of conflict, crisis, change and development on the African continent. Local radio stations are as important as international broadcasters being both the barometers and agents of change. North America: Praeger

This collection on radio in Africa is extremely timely ... Whereas only a few years ago radio was almost always a centralized state monopoly, now a variety of stations - public, private, and community based - have proliferated. Thus, this is a very exciting moment, for media studies generally and for radio in particular, and a book on the current state of radio in Africa is most welcome. - Charles Ambler, University of Texas at El Paso ...excellent collection ... Fardon and Furniss and their various collaborators have provided us with a most useful collection, and one which in some ways continues the editors' earlier work on language policy. ... It opens up an important subject. - Stephen Ellis in SOAS BULLETIN About the Author RICHARD FARDON is a former chairman of the Centre of African Studies at the University of London. GRAHAM FURNISS is also a former chairman of the Centre for African Studies. Fardon and Furniss previously collaborated on African Languages, Development, and the State (1994).