From MUSIC SALES AMERICA : TRAVELS WITH MY CELLO-12 FAVORITE PIECES FOR CELLO PIANO before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised TRAVELS WITH MY CELLO-12 FAVORITE PIECES FOR CELLO PIANO:

2 of 4 people found the following review helpful. okayBy A CustomerThis is a slender collection of glib anecdotes and quotes, arranged in no particular order. I read it in one sitting (it took the better part of an hour) when I ought to have been practicing the cello instead. The author's off-hand conversational prose is very occasionally incoherent, and the author quotes Shostakovich once out of context in a deliberately misleading way in order to justify, apparently, what some might characterize as pandering, but otherwise I found it agreeable and moderately entertaining. If you check it out of the library, make sure you check out other books as well or you'll find yourself shortly with nothing to

Not only is he an accomplished classic cellist, but a natural writer. This is a marvelous book covering his childhood with Andrew, and his career and travels as a cellist. Also with photographs, several with brother Andrew that have never been published anywhere else. If you find a copy of this book, BUY IT!

Music score from Julian's Travels with my cello CDBy Mikicellist1975I think the previous review refers to the "Travels with my cello" book Julian wrote, see link below (excellent and truly amusing, by the way, I think most cellists would identify themselves in the various situations of travelling with a cello Julian is remembering, particularly those from the early years of his career).This is a music score book for cello and piano and contains 12 of the most beautiful pieces from his "Travels with my cello" CD.It is a great collection of well-known and lesser known pieces for the cello, I particularly like the Andante Affettuoso by composer William Lloyd Webber, Julian's father. I am yet to master the Flight of the Bumble Bee (will I ever?), but I am hoping to get there eventually! Lovely collection for cellists (and aspiring ones).Travels with my cello

(Music Sales America). A collection of twelve pieces to show off the range and beauty of the cello, with piano accompaniment. Arranged by Julian Lloyd Webber.
