Who doesn't enjoy an evening filled with great trivia questions? Not those silly questions but ones that really get you thinking and of course one that you will enjoy as well. If that is the case then Trivi Yah: Puzzles Games Trivia With Interactive Q A is a must have for all who enjoy the challenge of a great game of wits. It is filled with a wide range of questions from religion to sports to music and history. It is the best set of trivia to date and will serve as a means of enjoyment for a long time. The creators of this product put a lot of time and effort into making it something that would not only challenge the mind but provide hours of fun for that family game night or fun filled evening with friends. Nothing is more fun than challenging the mind from time to time with well know facts.

About the Author Richard Wallace is no stranger to trivia. He grew up playing with family as a child and kept on playing right into his adult life. In fact his family still has that time honored games night each week and trivia is a great part of that. As such Richard decided to challenge himself and see if he could put together the best trivia of all time. It took him a great deal of time but with time and dedication along with the necessary research he was able to create his masterpiece. Of course his first set of test subjects were his family and they found it to be extremely interesting and fun filled. From there he made the decision to introduce it to his friends and then to the public at large. Nothing is more fun than a good game of trivia and Richard is aware of that. That is why what he has created is marketable as he; himself is his own best critic. If it was not fun for him it was not included in the package. He is aware that not everyone will find it as interesting and fun as he does but he tries as best as possible to appeal to the masses with his product.
